

Aaron Tran

Aaron Tran has worked as a consultant and terrorism researcher on projects across critical infrastructure, energy, and government. He has worked on strategic reviews of current security policies and procedures for critical infrastructure assets. Aaron graduated from the University of New South Wales with a Bachelor of Arts (Hons) and a Bachelor of Law, where his work was recognised through several industry awards and scholarships for his research on terrorism and national security.