Our apprenticeship experience

1st in the UK to launch apprenticeships at master's level

We understand what is required to develop industry-led apprenticeship standards and deliver the academic training.

We provide the academic tuition for the Systems Engineering Master's Apprenticeship Programme under the sponsorship of the Defence Growth Partnership.

How will your company benefit from Cranfield Masterships™?

By offering a Mastership your company will:

- be able to offer the opportunity to both early- and mid-career employees.
- be more attractive to a greater pool of graduates looking for their next step in their career.
- recoup its levy contributions on a higher level qualification.
- reduce the amount of time an employee is away from the company studying.
- enable business growth and a competitive edge by improving skills, abilities and knowledge in your workforce.
- Improve employee retention by investing in their development.

What are the benefits for your employees?

Providing training opportunities to your staff is a mutually beneficial opportunity.

Your employees will benefit from:

- greater job satisfaction and confidence that their employer is invested in their future career.
- a reduced personal financial burden as the training will be funded from the company's levy pot.
- earning a wage and studying at the same time, offering employees the opportunity to have increased independence early in their careers or mid-career employees less disruption to their home-life.
