Statement of Commitment to prevent facilitation of fraud

Statement from University

Cranfield University is committed to ensuring that all business carried out by and across the University and its group of Companies is conducted with integrity, transparency and fairness, and in compliance with all relevant rules, regulations and legislation. The University and its subsidiary companies are committed to preventing the facilitation of fraud in all its guises including but not limited to those under the Criminal Finances Act 2017; Money laundering Regulations, Anti-Bribery laws, Anti-corruption laws and the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

Cranfield University is a world-leading University; our education portfolio is renowned for its relevance to business and industry with which we develop close business relationships. With our subsidiary companies our work informs government policy and leads the way in producing cutting edge technologies and products in partnership with industry. We expect all our staff, students, agents and associates to exercise high standards of professionalism and ethical conduct in all their UK and overseas activities. The University also expects its partners, advisors, clients, customers, suppliers, contractors, consultants and other stakeholders along with their employees to adopt the same standards. The University will not work with other organisations that do not share the University's commitment to integrity, transparency and fairness in their business operations and complying with all relevant rules, regulations and legislation.
